

A big hello to our Romanian friends and their teachers!

We are very happy to participate in the Bookmark Exchange Project for the first time. We are also glad to interchange bookmarks and a part of our history with you!

This year's project motto is Learn how to decode our world and we chose to decode it by using poljičica – the old Croatian alphabet, typically used in the region that we come from.

The preservation of cultural and historical heritage is an important part of the school curriculum activities. Taking part in this project turned out to be a great way to connect our students and the students from other parts of the world, in this case, Europe.

Our school is a small school located in the village of Srinjine. At the same time, we are an integral part of the city schools of the city of Split, which is the second largest town in Croatia. The elementary school Srinjine counts 196 students, of which 18 participated in making bookmarks. These students are a part of the group named Young Librarians.

No wonder, they were all very excited while creating these bookmarks because they represent their origins on many levels indeed!

We hope you'll like them 😊

Best regards,

Tea Radić, librarian, and her students

The making of bookmarks (in a few photos):

